Your task is to design a website aimed at Australian workers who are communicating with the expanding workplaces of India or China. Your website should provide information and advice concerning how to communicate in the workplace and in business with workers in these cultures. The website could include advice on:

- how workers in these countries view authority
- views on work among the general population
- how to give instructions
- how to arrange meetings and deadlines
- non-verbal communication (eye contact, etc)
- how to deal with situations of conflict.

To start your task, use a general internet search, such as ‘workplace communication India’. Use visuals to support your website.

You must include four sources in your bibliography.
