The term ‘new apprenticeship’ in today’s world means an apprenticeship or a ________________.
With these new apprenticeships, the apprentice can get training at TAFE or at the ________________.
There is one big difference between an apprenticeship and a traineeship – the length of time. With an apprenticeship, the apprentice takes _________________ years to learn the trade, while in a traineeship it usually takes _________________ months.

Today, the new apprenticeships are all about becoming qualified on and off the job, so that the apprentice gains skills or _________________ (signs of showing they can do the job). If the apprentice shows a high level of skill, then he or she can finish the apprenticeship _________________ than others.

Apprenticeships in Australia are _________________ popular than before. In fact, they have _________________ in number since 1995. There are now _________________ occupations in Australia that can offer these new apprenticeships.

With any apprenticeship, there is always a _________________ to be signed in which it is clearly stated what the _________________ of the apprentice are and also what the employer must do for the employee. A trainee or apprentice will always get _________________ pay than when they are fully qualified, but at least they are being paid while they are learning. It is important to remember that the employer also gets a _________________ from the government for each apprentice that they take into their company. This is the government’s way of _________________ companies to take apprentices.
